Interpon D2525 Terracotta Effect Collection

Superdurable earthy elegance

Terracotta, a clay-based ceramic, is a popular material for delivering earthy facades that offers a vast suite of architectural design possibilities, with stunning results. The challenge with using real Terracotta, however, is that it is heavy, difficult to install, and prone to cracking under mechanical impact or structural movement.

That's where an Interpon D powder coating has the answers. The superdurable Interpon D2525 Terracotta Effect Collection overcomes all these challenges and more, providing a robust finish with more practical advantages and reduced associated costs. But its real advantage is in the beautiful colors and effects it can create, transforming aluminum surfaces with red, earthy tones that are always on trend, or a classic, glazed effect that opens the doors to bold designs and countless color possibilities.

Indeed, our Interpon color professionals have been inspired by the charms of Moroccan ceramics and their North African heritage to create a palette of 12 colors of earthy reds, forest greens, warm yellow and azure blue hues to match any imagination, but all anchored to a desire to mimic both natural and glazed Terracotta.

Interpon D2525 Terracotta Effect Collection: A terracotta finish that retains its vibrancy and style for many years and offers endless architectural design possibilities, while helping to build a sustainable future.
